President's Message

It is my sincere pleasure to introduce this first ever Annual Report for the Regina Garden Associates (RGA). RGA volunteers provide a wide range services including educational programming for students of all ages, hosting public and private events and programming, designing and installing the floral display, and much, much, more.

The 2011-12 season was a busy one that commenced with vacancies in two important board positions: President and Vice-President. The Board of Directors appointed me as the Vice-President in the fall of 2011 while we worked to fill the role of President. In April, the Board of Directors appointed me as the Interim President and long-time RGA volunteer Bob MacFarlane as the Interim Vice-President. The appointments expire at the 2012 RGA Annual General Meeting, September 11, 2012, at which time a new executive will be elected.

These appointments were made to give the board more stability and the resources needed to draw upon as it planned for the 2012-13 season.

The board held a Strategic Board Planning Session with executive and committee members in June of 2012 to map out the upcoming season and to evaluate everything that we do with a focus on increasing membership (and in turn volunteers), improving member communication and increasing opportunities for members to gather, increasing revenues, fine tuning our successful events and programming, and working towards the building of a new floral conservatory.

During 2011-12, the association received a Business Case for the building of a new Floral Conservatory in Regina prepared by the University of Regina's Centre for Management Development. The case presents an ambitious plan for the building of a new conservatory. In order to even begin to work towards the building of a new floral conservatory, the association requires a solid foundation upon which to build – a major focus for the association in the upcoming 2012-13 season.

The RGA is currently in the process of negotiating a formal funding agreement with the City of Regina for the first time in the association's history.

At the end of the 2011-12 season, two long-time and dedicated RGA volunteers retired from positions that they had held with the RGA for many years in the areas of Events and Publications. The volunteer workload of these two individuals amounted to almost full-time work in both cases, meaning the association needed to find a number of volunteers to ensure the roles were fulfilled in the 2012-13 season.

The executive met several times over the course of the summer to restructure the association's committees and to identify areas in which more volunteer help would be required to ensure a successful 2012-13 season. Our membership has certainly answered the call, with many members pitching in to take on new volunteer duties. I am thankful for everyone's ongoing dedication and desire to ensure the Regina Floral Conservatory continues to play such an important role in our community. It's going to be an exciting year!

About the Regina Garden Associates

The RGA was formed as a non-profit organization in 1991 with the goal of supporting the establishment and development of horticultural projects within the City of Regina. The original group of 12 members has grown over the years to a membership of just over 100 dedicated volunteers with a passion for gardening, plants and all things green that operate and maintain the Regina Floral Conservatory. In 1999, the RGA and the City formed a partnership to maintain a 315-square metre greenhouse display, oversee special events and run the small gift shop.

In the last 21 years, fundraising activities have varied and have included teas, a gift shop, tree banding kits, plant sales, "Grow and Show" contests, gardening classes, seed packaging and sales, and facility rental and promotion. Over the last two decades, the RGA has continued to focus on working with students, teachers and parents from Regina and area schools to foster awareness of gardening, horticulture and the environment.

Today, the Regina Floral Conservatory is operated and maintained by RGA volunteers with the support of the City of Regina.

Mission

The Regina Garden Associates is a volunteer non-profit organization that operates the Regina Floral Conservatory to provide a unique, tranquil, indoor tropical garden for the enjoyment and education of all ages and cultures in our community.

About the Regina Floral Conservatory

The current facility was established by the City of Regina during the 1950's. It housed the main office building for the City Parks and Recreation Department and also consisted of three small greenhouses to grow plant material used to beautify the city. A portion of this operation was later opened to the public featuring a variety of themed displays, so that the citizens of Regina could enjoy an indoor green space. Another large production greenhouse was built in 1986 and was used by the City until 1999, when it was leased to Trico Farms, a commercial greenhouse operation.

This greenhouse was dismantled in 2008 to make room for the new Parks and Open Space office building directly south of the old building.

Two of the small greenhouses were dismantled in 1990, and in 1996, Regina's City Council proposed to close the remaining greenhouse (the one open to the public) and their horticultural program in favour of contracting commercial suppliers for plant material for city parks and flowerbeds.

Due to enthusiastic public support, the display greenhouse was kept open, and in 1999, a partnership was formed with the RGA to maintain the floral display, organize rentals and events, and operate a small gift shop in the main facility. The greenhouse was renamed the Regina Floral Conservatory in 2002. The gift shop was discontinued in 2008, but the floral display continues to delight visitors and school children with its beauty and tropical diversity.

Members

There are currently approximately 100 members of the Regina Garden Associates. Membership fees are $15 per year per individual. All members have a wide variety of volunteer opportunities available to them, including:

- Floral Display Maintenance
- Information Centre
- Teas and Events
- Educational Programming, Family Days, and Lil' Gardeners Club
- Conservatory Tour Guides
- RGA Promotion

In addition to these volunteer opportunities, our members gather three times a year for RGA potlucks, have the opportunity to gain hands-on experience in growing and planting projects and to meet and learn from experienced gardeners.

Each summer, the RGA also plans a garden tour for its members. This summer, RGA members gathered for a tour and learning session at the Wascana Centre Authority (WCA). Darcy Schenk, Manager of Forestry & Horticulture with the WCA, educated members about the many responsibilities of his team, from the growing of annuals, shrubs and trees, to park maintenance and dealing with pests. Mr. Schenk also took members on a walk about by the new Queen Elizabeth II Gardens in front of the Saskatchewan Legislative Building that were undergoing a significant renovation and upgrade in honour of the WCA's 50th Anniversary and the 100th Anniversary of the Legislative Building.

Floral Display

The main highlight of the Regina Floral Conservatory is the indoor floral display that is open to the public, free of charge, seven days a week from September to the start of June (except for Christmas Day and New Year's Day). There is a permanent collection of trees, shrubs and other plants that make up the base of the floral display. This permanent collection includes a variety of trees (from figs to Norfolk pines) and plants (birds of paradise, succulents, cacti, and more).

This permanent collection is enhanced by the floral display itself, which is designed, installed and maintained by RGA volunteers under the leadership of Pat Kosloski and Joanne Sens. Each morning, a volunteer maintenance crew oversees the care of the display – from watering, deadheading, identifying and dealing with insects and pests, adding in new plants and more.

Throughout the course of the conservatory's 10-month season, six different displays are designed and installed. During the 2011-2012 season, the displays included: a fall display, Thanksgiving & Fall Chrysanthemums, Christmas (featuring hundreds of poinsettias), Winter Get Away & Orchid Show, Spring Bulbs & Easter Blossoms, and Celebrate Spring.

Information Centre

The Information Centre at the Regina Floral Conservatory is the public's first point of contact upon their arrival. RGA volunteers staff the centre on a daily basis during the hours the display is open to the public, seven days a week. Volunteers provide the public with information about the current display and any upcoming events and programming at the conservatory.

Long-time volunteer Edna McCall heads up the Information Centre, which this past year was staffed by:

- *Monday –
Emma Bartel and Grace Burtonwood*
- *Tuesday –
Mary Hoffman and Shirley Tuttosì*
- *Wednesday –
Geri Colter and Edna McCall*
- *Thursday –
Trudy Natyshak and Anna Woods*
- *Friday –
Ralph Bryanton and Barb Crowhurst.*
- *Saturday –
Rose Miller*
- *Sunday –
Marion & John Lake, Elizabeth Magee*

Our volunteers give the public special attention to ensure their visit to the conservatory is a memorable one. There are many compliments from guests about how they are greeted and treated throughout their visit at the conservatory – something we love to hear!

Educational Programming

Our Educational Programming is fondly known as Kids Can Grow and is run by a number of retired educators under the leadership of Rosemary Helliwell. Her team includes: Marilyn Bergen, George and Lily Dobransky, Angela Fuller, Brenda Herring, Marj Sawyer, and Joanne Sens. Marion Lake has also provided invaluable assistance to the team.

Kids Can Grow focuses on the exciting and diverse world of plants. School classes tour the tropics, deserts and temperate zones of the floral conservatory. They discover some of the interesting adaptations of plants needed for their survival in different climates. Students look for plants that humans utilize and learn about plant growth, parts and needs.

Each participant learns how to prepare and plant a cutting for dish gardens and bottle gardens. One of the new focuses of the program is the introduction of vermicomposting whereby children learn to use red wiggler worms to compost household kitchen food waste. Students and adults with disabilities are provided access, tours and a hands-on experience.

The Kids Can Grow program consists of four environmental education components with the following objectives:

- Conservatory school tours for nearly 1,000 students, teachers and assistants from elementary and secondary public, Catholic and private schools in Regina and surrounding areas;
- Hosting 500 youth and adults at four garden themed Family Days (September, October, January & April);
- Environmental education outreach to Girl Guides and Scouts; Regina Open Door Society (a partnership is currently under development to aid language development); Ranch Ehrlo Society, plus students with disabilities from Cosmopolitan Learning Centre;
- Hosting 700 pre-school children and adult visitors at nine Lil' Gardeners Club events, a preschool program to promote creativity and interest in gardening and the environment.

Family Days

The four garden-themed Family Days bring youth and adult family members together for an outing that showcases plant ecology with seasonal themes. Children participate in planting a bulb, cacti, or cuttings at each event to take home with them and care for.

Lil' Gardeners' Club

From the inception of the Lil' Gardeners Club in 2009-2010, the program component has progressively expanded into a nine-event initiative, comprising one event per month. It is implemented as a co-op effort of the RGA with parents/guardians or caregivers. Lil' Gardeners Club emphasizes creative play, exploration, investigation and social interaction in a garden environment. Programming stresses work with vocabulary around plants and encouragement of parents to play and read with their children.

The RGA environmental education program continues to meet an increasing need for Regina's youth and families. Support from the TD Friends of the Environment Foundation has enabled the continued expansion of the Kids Can Grow program. Student, parent and teacher letters are extremely supportive of the programming. We are encouraged with the interest shown to-date and our volunteers remain focused on offering the best in environmental education programming and floral displays. During the 2011-12 season, our educators worked with 1,466 children in 115 classes, 364 parent supervisors, and 110 teachers and teacher assistants. Every year our numbers continue to grow. The letters and appreciative comments that are received as each class leaves, spurs us on and we know that we are making a significant difference in the lives of our youth. These little ones and their families keep us all young at heart and laughing.

Teas

Each year, the RGA puts on five public teas at the Regina Floral Conservatory. Each tea has four sittings of an hour each where guests are treated to tea, coffee, and dainties and enjoy local entertainment. The RGA's Social Committee responsible for putting on the teas consists of Social Director Edna McCall and her team (Rose Miller, Joanne Sens, Mary Hoffman, Shirley Tuttosi and Christine Brown).

In 2011-12, the five teas hosted by the RGA included the Harvest Tea, Christmas Tea, Valentine's Tea, Easter Tea, and the Celebrate Mothers Tea. This season's events were extremely successful with near sellouts for some and complete sellouts for most.

This year's entertainment for the teas featured a wide variety of local talent performing for the first time at the conservatory, including Ken Jefferson, Brian Sklar and the Tex Pistols, Gil White (AKA "Gilvis"), Dennis and Curtis Ficor, and, back by popular demand, A capella Attitude.

Horticultural Open House

Every spring, the RGA partners with several other local plant and horticultural societies to put on a Horticultural Open House. Joining the RGA to organize and put on this event each year is the Regina Horticultural Society, Peony Society, Rose Society and Lily Society. This annual event is come-and-go style and gives the general public an opportunity to meet other gardeners, ask questions of experts from these societies and gain information about the many vibrant gardening organizations in our city.

By the Numbers

The Regina Floral Conservatory continues to be a popular attraction for visitors including those from Regina and other areas in the province, as well as national and international travelers. During the 2011-12 season, more than 11,200 people visited the Regina Floral Conservatory.

Forty per cent of those who visited in 2011-12 were those who came in to view the floral display, including visitors from six Canadian provinces and eight foreign countries. Twenty-three per cent were people who participated in educational programming including school tours, Family Days and Lil' Gardeners Club. The remaining 36 per cent included people who attended teas, private booked events and photo sessions. Total monthly visits peaked in April with more than 1,800 people, followed in order by December, March and May with more than 1,300 people per month.

Of all events hosted, weddings and photos, plus paid group/private functions comprised 62 and 25 events respectively. A total of 64 school tours were held along with four Family Days, nine Lil' Gardeners Clubs and five public teas.

RGA volunteers started to record events and attendance beginning in 2008-09. Use of the Regina Floral Conservatory is continuing to evolve. To date the four-year attendance and events have fluctuated from a 15,606 people and 261 events in 2009-10 to 11,222 people and 191 events in 2011-12. The number of visitors continues to remain fairly consistent in the range of 4,500 to 5,500 people. The evolution in visitors could be a result of a combination of both expanded educational programming offered and increased event rental rates. The peak year for events occurred in 2008-2009 with 295 and this was principally represented by 134 weddings/photos, 11 paid photo sets plus 169 paid group/private functions. The four-year trend has seen a decline in total events. This is primarily attributed to fewer weddings/photos and paid group/private functions. In sharp contrast, educational programming has school tours increasing from 33 in 2008-2009 to a high of 74 in 2009-2010. For 2011-2012, school tours increased to 64 over 44 in 2010-2011.

The addition of Little Gardeners events beginning in 2009-2010 has grown from 5 to 9 events. Public teas and Family Days remain constant at 5 and 4, respectively. To generalize, the number of people and events for private use by rental of the Floral Conservatory are declining over the four-year period. Public use by visitors remains relatively constant with additional new people growth being attracted by expanded educational programming.

Partners/Sponsors

The RGA would like to thank its many partners and sponsors who are an integral part of the continued success of the Regina Floral Conservatory and all that the RGA does.

- (d) Revenue is recognized in the period in which it is earned and if the amount to be received can be reasonably estimated and collection is reasonably assured.
- (e) The preparation of financial statements in accordance with Canadian generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements, and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting period. These estimates are reviewed periodically, and, as adjustments become necessary, they are reported in earnings in the period in which they become known.

Five-Year Financial Analysis

The financial position of the RGA has continued to flourish over the past five years. The net assets of the organization have grown $50,255 from $126,853 at June 30, 2008 to $177,108 at June 30, 2012. This represents continuing growth in the revenues the organization raises accompanied by the careful management of expenses. The organization has also invested $17,500 for completion of a feasibility study in 2010 and $5,000 for a business plan in 2011. The University of Regina Centre for Management Development prepared these documents, with input from the RGA members and other interested groups. These documents provide a professional view of the future direction of the Regina Floral Conservatory and will help the RGA continue to develop in the coming years.

The rental of the conservatory for personal events such as weddings, anniversaries, birthdays has been the main source of revenue over the past five years, although revenue from these events has dropped from a high of $23,003 in 2010 to a low of $16,402 in 2012.

A hailstorm in the summer of 2011 resulted in a loss of revenue since the facility was closed for repairs for two months. The Board of Directors is reviewing this source of revenue since the long-time Event Coordinator decided to take a well-deserved retirement from this activity. Offsetting this decline in revenue is the increase in the Kids Can Grow program sponsored by the TD Friends of the Environment. This popularity of this program and the continued support of the TD sponsorship resulted in an increase in revenue from $1,393 in 2008 to $8,500 in 2012. This program brings many young families to the conservatory to experience the unique atmosphere of the conservatory and expands the base of conservatory patrons. Teas, donations and membership continue to be fairly consistent sources of revenue for the RGA.

The expenses for the operation of the conservatory, programs and publicity, administration and members have fluctuated over the five-year period. In 2009 communications and technology for the conservatory were updated to provide voice-messaging services and there was a one-time expense of $4,579 for a new audio system. The communications upgrade both increased the ease with which people calling the conservatory could book events and register for programs, and the ease with which volunteers could access and respond to these requests. Internet service was also established which brought the benefits of online calendaring and access to e-mail and the Regina Floral Conservatory website at the conservatory.

The expenses of the Kids Can Grow program have increased consistently with the increase in the number of families participating. Publicity and printing costs have risen over the five-year period in order provide wider exposure to the events and promotion of the availability of the conservatory as a unique rental facility in Regina. The growing use of social media, earned media and other free publicity opportunities available to non-profit organizations will help to manage these types of costs in the coming years.

In 2010 contract labour costs started to be recorded in the Greenhouse category rather than the Administration category. This change is reflected in a lower Administration cost from 2010 onwards and a corresponding higher cost for operating the Greenhouse.

The following graph depicts the various categories of expenses:

5 Year Expenses 2012 to 2008

Goals for 2012-13

An important goal for the coming year, and indeed for years to come, will be to continue to attract new members, especially those from a younger age demographic, so that we can ensure the RGA continues to flourish into the future. One of the key challenges many organizations and associations throughout the province and country are currently facing is a shortage of new blood. In order to facilitate continuity and knowledge transfer within the association, it's important that the RGA starts to attract members of a younger age. Our educational programming is a great vehicle for finding these new members. Many of those who are coming to the conservatory for this programming often are coming for the first time and are members of younger families. A greater emphasis will be placed on encouraging more of these visitors sign up to become members of the RGA.

This coming year, a Fundraising Committee will be established with the goal to establish an annual campaign to fund annual operating costs. To be launched by spring 2013, this new exciting initiative will progressively seek annual contributions ultimately reaching $25,000+ per year.

The Committee will focus on corporate, foundation and individual contributions to the Regina Garden Associates' operation of the Regina Floral Conservatory. The Committee will first identify what aspects of the operation could be matched to contributor interests. Subsequent work through the coming year will include research and identifying a prospective donor list from which committee members will prioritize, develop individual prospect proposals and contact/ask will be made to prospective contributors. While the Fundraising Committee's effort is new, they will be building on a successful existing RGA corporate partnership with TD Canada Trust Friends of the Environment Fund, which currently contributes to the RGA educational programming.

In 2012-13, the board will continue to work to ensure the association has an engaged and sustainable membership and volunteer base, well-run and organized events, sustainable revenue streams, strengthened relationships with our community (the City, Wascana Authority, Open Door Society and other entities), and that we do all of this keeping our mission top of mind:

The Regina Garden Associates is a volunteer non-profit organization that operates the Regina Floral Conservatory to provide a unique, tranquil, indoor tropical garden for the enjoyment and education of all ages and cultures in our community.
